Developing and executing own projects and initiatives. This includes independent planning, organization and execution. Providing services on one's own initiative entails making one's own assessment for one's own decisions regarding the path to be taken, the steps required to achieve the task. There is thus a scope for discretion, decision-making, design and/or assessment in the development of a work result. The characteristic "independent services" should not be confused with the term "working independently", which means working without direct supervision or management.
